

Juliette Nehring is looking forward to sharing her love of music, art, and nature with your children. She has been a mother for over 20 years and has over 25 years of experience as an early childhood and music education specialist. Her thoughtful and intuitive approach and love of children has led her through years of training and enrichment to developing her own programs.

In Juliette's life, music has always been a joy which she shares with her own children as well as others. From her very beginning, music and performing have always been a part of Juliette's life and family. Raised in a musical family, she was creating and sharing music with others throughout her childhood. With a degree in music from Butler University and specialties in music education, vocal music, and literature, Juliette has been formally studying and teaching all ages since 1990.

She has enjoyed positions as music specialist and after school instructor in several Indianapolis area elementary schools, preschools, camps, and nursing homes as well as teaching private lessons and group classes.

Ms. Juliette believes...

- Music is one of the essential components of a person's intellectual and emotional development.
- Musical parenting, modeling, and mentoring are important to a child's access to music, their experience in learning about music, their perception of music and their musical heritage.
- It is important to our cultures not only to acknowledge, but also to uphold our musical traditions.
- Music is an essential element of human existence; it is in everyone...
